COCAINEVICTIMSFINED

GEORGETOWN COLORED MEN HAVE BEEN PUZZLING POLICE.

"Dope" Epidemic Checked - Judge O'Neal Imposes Sentence, but Makes No Comment.

Three colored men were arrested in Georgetown yesterday morning between midnight and dayoreak, and their admissions to the police furnished a solution of the problem of how so many colored people have been getting "dope" during recent weeks. The police have been troubled with colored men who were apparently under the influence of liquor, but who were really under the influence of cocaine.

"They have been going about Georgetown with their eyes almost popping from their heads and looking like so many jack rabbits," remarked Sergt. Schneider at the Police Court this morning.

The officer explained that some of them were in a sleepy condition and others were in fighting humor. It was not until last week that the police learned the cause of such condition of affairs. Then they were told that a colored man had been selling cocaine powders. Yesterday morning the three arrests were made, and two of the men had supplies of the "dope" on them. West Beckett was the principal one of the trio, and Charles Jackson, it was alleged had been following in his footsteps by selling the "dope" powders in addition to using them. The third person arrested was Marl It was only alleged against him that he had been using the cocaine. chief witness against him was Robert Burgess, also colored, who occupied a room He had noticed the peculiar conduct of Carter, and had felt uneasy at "Every time I would wake up in the night," said Burgess to Judge O'Neal this morning, "I would see him snuffing something up his nose, and I didn't know what it was.

It was explained to the court that his condition was something terrible when he was arrested. His eyes appeared as if they were about to pop out of his head, and he seemed almost lifeless. Even when he appeared in court this morning he did not seem to fully realize what was going on. Acting Sergeant Brown and Policemen Peterson and Moffett were in court with Lieut. Jordan this morning to explain the case to Judge O'Neal. Packages of the cocaine powders were spread upon the judge's bench, and bottles of vaseline were also exhibited as evidence. It was stated that the vaseline is used externally to pre-vent injury being inflicted by the repeated use of the cocaine. The powders, it was said, cost about 1 cent each, and were sold for a dime. Beckett told the police that he bought the cocaine in "Dead Man's Hol-low," across in Virginia, where the business of selling it was conducted very much on the order of the moonshine method of selling liquor. He said he would place a sum of money on the stump of a tree, make a sign and disappear. A few minutes later he would return and get the cocaine. The police did not take much stock in this statement, and learned that he had made some purchases in this city. After the men had been arrested it was thought by the police that a charge of alleged violation of the District pharmacy laws might be preferred against them. Detective Proctor. who has charge of such work, was con-sulted, and he failed to find any law under which the men could be prosecuted for the alleged sale of the cocaine about the streets. As a last resort the colored men were charged with vagrancy, and it was upon such charge that they were arraigned. Beckett and Jackson were represented by Attorney Collins, and he said he would enter a plea of guilty for his clients. The police presented their side of the case. explaining the conditions as stated. Beckett was placed upon the stand, and he exwas placed upon the stand, and he ex-plained how he had become addicted to the use of the drug. "Are you a cocaine doctor?" he was asked.

"No, sir," he responded; "but I've been using it for four years."

He said he had catarrh of the head and a blood tumor caused by an injury. The doc tor, he told the court, prescribed from two to six grains of the morphine a day for to be a drunkard," said the prisoner, "but the cocaine takes away the thirst for liquor, and nobody ever sees me drunk

Beckett said he was a teamster during the war with Spain, and went to Cuba. It was during his service there that he got Jackson's excuse was that he used cocaine for a sore throat, and admitted that it made him sleepy. Carter had no explanation to offer.

Judge O'Neal disposed of the case by imposing a fine of $10 or thirty days impris-onment upon each defendant, and made no comment on the conduct of the defendants.

ing Municipal Building Construction. Mr. C. A. McKinney, District engineer in charge of the construction of the new municipal building for the District government, does not agree with the recently published report that the completion of the foundations of the structure will be delayed until the middle of next year. To a reporter for The Star Mr. McKinney stated today that he does not anticipate any serious delay whatever in the completion of According to the terms of the contract the foundations must be constructed by the 1st of January next. Mr. McKinney says it is possible that from various causes this work may not be finished until three or four weeks later than the limit stipulated in the contract, but he does not believe the date of completion will be extended further than the last of January.

The greatest source of difficulty in connection with the work at this time, Mr. McKinney says, is the trouble experienced by the contractor in securing the prompt delivery of the piles needed for the work. These piles are obtained from various coints down the Potomac river, and lately there has been some delay in securing as large shipments as have been needed. With-in the last few days, he said, the delivery of plies has been increasing, and no serious delay is anticipated from this cause.

With reference to the difficulty encountered by the contractor in excavating the site, owing to the water, Mr. McKinney stated that they had expected to experience some difficulty with water in the foun-dations, but that the trouble thus far encountered has not been so great as was anicipated. Provision was made for the driv ing of a large number of piles in the site. stated that not more than 200 piles, in addition to those previously esti-mated for, will have to be driven for the

The District engineer admitted that some delay in completing the work might be occasioned in the event the weather became too severe to permit of prosecuting the work, but he does not anticipate that the weather conditions during the next two months will be any more severe than usual. "In the event the worst happens," said Mr. McKinney, "it is hardly probable that there will be any delay whatever in the completion of the new municipal building. even if unforeseen difficulties should cause considerable delay in completing the foundations. The work of constructing the superstructure cannot be commenced until in the spring, and the foundations can surely be finished by that time, even if serious diffi-culties now unfóreseen should arise."

Mr. Gilfillen died Saturday night after protracted illness. He had been feeling badly for some little time and recently went to the Grand Army encampment in Boston since which time he has grown slowly but steadily worse, and it is believed the strain incident to the trip hastened his death. Mr. Gilfillen was born at Moscow, Ohio sixty-one years ago. For thirty-nine years he has been employed in the War Denartment, and at the time of his death was en rolled among the clerks in the Winder building. During the civil war he was a member of Battery H of the 1st Ohio Light Artillery. Since removing to Washington he became a member of Burnside Post, G. A. funeral. He was also a member of the Old Guard and held every office in that organization. Thirty-three years ago he was married to Mrs. Lakin, who died two years ago. Mr. John Pons, seventy-four years of age, of Baltimore, Md., died Saturday afternoon at the home of his son, Mr. John F. Pons, 1317 James street, after a week's illness. Mr. Pons was born in Spain, but came to this country when he was four years old. His father was at one time the leader of the United States Marine Band. When twelve years of age he enlisted in the United States Marine Corps as a drummer and served several years. Since he was nineteen years of age he had resided in Baltimore. His wife, Miss Olivia Weaver of France, died about six years ago. Five children survive him. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 3:30, from the home of Mr. John Pons. Interment will be in Bon-nie Brae cemetery, Baltimore.

Mme. David Did Not Sing.

Mme. Nina David, the colorature soprano, who is said to have such a phenomenal range, did not sing at the Columbia Theater last night. Manager Luckett received a dispatch from Robert Grau yesterday afternoon saying that it would be impossible for her to sing on account of illness. Hinsdale, Ill., for injunction to restrain the A large number of people went to the theater only to be disappointed at the information that the concert was postponed indefinitely. There was quite a good advance sale but the money was all returned.

While playing about his home Saturday afternoon James S. Creamer, three years old, son of Police Sergeant Creamer, got hold of a bottle containing carbolic acid and swallowed a small quantity of the liquid. Mrs. Creamer, the child's mother, took the little one in her arms and started for assistance. Fortunately, her husband had left a patrol wagon she succeeded in getting the child to Providence Hospital without any delay. Its condition is not serious.
